Dies Natalis

Howard Hanson

Howard Hanson was the director of the Eastman School of Music from 1924 through 1964. During this time he led the Eastman School to a position of unquestioned acclaim in the preparation of performers, theorists, composers, administrators, etc. His own composition credits include six symphonies, an opera "Mary Mount", numerous works for orchestra, and the wind band. Among the latter in addition to "Dies Natalis" one finds the "Chorale and Allelulia" commissioned by the American Bandmasters Association and the "Young Person's Guide to the Six Tone Scale" for solo piano and wind ensemble.
